

NEUROSIS

SOULS AT ZERO

ALTERNATIVE TENTACLES

Since a friend of mine has been badgering me about checking this band out, I thought it was time to heed his words and listen to this the bands third album. Apparently they have played extensively around the U.S.A to fantastic revues. Their first European tour is now been fixed up for later this year. 'Zero' demonstrates some of the best style grunge bass courtesy of Dave Edwardson that I have heard in a long while. Comparisons of the old British band AMEBLX rear up on tracks like 'The Web', 'A Chronology For Survival' and 'Takeahnase', but it is not all heavy, there are lighter moments like the almost rocky 'Stripped' . This record is brilliant basically, reasonably fast in places, but is made by its riffs and its guitar work, not to mention a raw but very well suited production, make a note to see them later this year.
